MR. WILLIAM MARTIN

Mr. William Martin, 68, widower of Bertha Holt Martin, died suddenly and unexpectedly Monday in Lynchburg. His home was on R. F. D. 3, Lynchburg. Born in Appomattox County, he was the son of the late Thomas Henry Martin and the late Willie Jamerson Martin. He was a member of Concord Methodist Church. He is survived by two sons. Thomas W. Martin and Ruben Martin, both of R. F. D. 3, Lynchburg; four daughters, Miss Leltie Martin and Mrs. Aylor E. Hall, both of Lynchburg; Mrs. J. W. Dunn, R. F. D. 2, and Mrs. H. W. Burks, of Gladys; 16 grandchildren, and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held in Lynchburg Thursday at 3 P. M. Burial will be in Martin Family Cemetery, near Concord.

FAMILY REUNION

Forrest Marshall, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Marshall, of Roanoke, was host to the annual reunion of the Marshall-Caldwell families, which was held at the same place, the home of the late Mr and Mrs. H. B. Marshall, Spout Spring, on Labor Day Sunday.

About 200 members gathered with their picnic baskets, from Lynchburg, Roanoke, Scottsville, Martinsville, Richmond, Crewe, Norfolk, Rustburg, Brookneal, Forrest, Roseland, Madison Heights, Appomattox, Fairmont, W. Va., Portsmouth, O.; Salisburg, N. C.; Hazard, Ky.; Blountville, Tenn.; Collingswood, N. J. and the surounding area.

Jones Caldwell, Lynchburg, president, presided over the meeting. He introduced Dr. Carl Collins, Jr., pastor of Liberty Baptist Church, who gave the invocation and remembered in prayer those members, thirteen in number, who had passed on since the last meeting.

Prizes were awarded the two oldest ladies and the two oldest men present.

The day was saddened by the funeral of Tom Mott Harvey, who was a member of the clan.

The social hours that follow are always enjoyed, and group singing around the old piano in the living room is usually an added feature.

CEREMONY AT FISHERSVILLE

Fishersville, Va.- State and Augusta County officials today prepared to celebrate next Tuesday, September 17, acquisition of final title to the $3 million Woodrow Wilson Education Center, declared war surplus and turned over conditionally to the Virginia Governmental units 10 years ago by the Federal government. Title has become final without cost to the people of Virginia upon fulfillment of the conditions of the deed.

Guided tours through the facility will be conducted from 10 A. M. to noon. Then there will be a luncheon for specially invited guests, followed by a concert by the Wilson Memorial High School band at 1:30 P. M. and brief exercises commemorating the transfer of title.

Simpson Food Market Won Softball Title

Above: Bobby Mitchell left, and Fred Lawson, right, secretary and president of the Appomattox Softball League, congratulate Johnny Simpson, center, whose team won the league championship this year. A banquet honoring the winning team was held at Hotel Appomattox last Friday evening. Simpson's team won both the regular season schedule and the play-off series. Henry Simmons, a pitcher for Simpson, ran up a record of 15 straight victories. Six teams played in the local league this season.

The public is invited to take part in the tours and attend the acquisition ceremony.

The facility consists of three units:

(1) The Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center for the disabled. This is probably the most comprehensive center for restoration of the disabled to productive and satisfying life in all the world. It operates year-round usually with 375 resident students from up to 34 states, but mostly from Virginia. These are receiving physical restoration services, training for employment in a wide range of occupations, and counseling and guidance. This is operated by the Virginia Vocational Rehabilitation Service.

(2, The Woodrow Wilson Technical School (regional) is operated year-round with a normal enrollment of 450 - 500, of whom about 300 are disabled students of the rehabilitation center. Among the courses are radio and TV servicing, auto mechanics, body and fender repair, various secretarial and commercial subjects, electric appliance repair, barbering, cosmetology, drafting, general mechanics, sewing and weave-shop, shoe repair (including orthopedic), upholstery and furniture repair and refinishing, woodworking, watch and clock repair, weaving and work experience training. This is operated by the Augusta County School Board.

(3) The Wilson Memorial High School is a four year consolidated school with an enrollment above 1,500 and with about 200 graduates a year, many of them now prominent and contributing citizens. This also is operated by the Augusta County School Board.

The Center is on the north side of Route 250 midway between Waynesboro and Staunton.

PRUSSIC ACID IN SORGHUMS AND SUDAN GRASS

Sorghums and Sudan grass contain a substance called dhurrin which upon breaking down releases prussic acid or hydrocyanic acid. The amount varies depending upon the sorghum. Sudan grass contains only 2/5 as much prussic acid as many sorghums grown under the same conditions.

Young plants are higher in prussic acid than those approaching maturity. Small plants and young branches are high in prussic acid. The leaves contain from 3 to 25 times more prussic acid than corresponding portions of the stalk in plants in the boot stage. The upper (younger) leaves contain more prussic acid than the lower leaves.

Sudan is normally safe to graze after it is 18 inches tall. Sudan grass rarely kills animals in Virginia unless it is contaminated with sorghum or sorghum-Sudan hybrids.

Sorghums are unsuitable for pasture generally and are unsafe to graze in all stages of growth except after the plants are mature and no new growth is present. Even mature sorghum is unsafe to graze after it has been frosted or frozen.

Frosted or frozen Sudan should not be gazed until it is completely dry with no evidence of new growth. New growth that occurs on either Sudan grass or sorghum after a frost is extemely high in prussic acid content and very poisonous.

If Sudan grass or sorghum is ready to cut before a frost or a freeze occurs, it may be cut during the first day following the frost and used for silage or hay.

Comment On Sports

By Pete Fritchie

Washington — The Milwaukee Braves have done it, friends. They're as good as in. We know that mathematically, as this is written, they could lose. But don't count on it. This year the Braves are the team—one year late.

The Braves suddenly broke the backs of four contenders in an August week that will long be remembered in baseball circles. The pressure had been building up on everybody for several months. The Braves seemed to fold a bit under the strain in 1956, and people were waiting for thes lump again this year.

Instead, Fred Haney's lads suddenly beatirerd themselves and turned on the power. That power shot the Braves into a comfortable lead in one week! With Brooklyn, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Philadelphia all having wilted under the pressure, the Braves held up.

So it looks as if it will be the Braves and the Yankees. The New Yorkers, world champions and all, have not looked terribly impressive this year. The Yankees could conceivably lose to a team like Milwaukee in the World Series. They have stayed on top mainly this year by beating the top teams they had to beat when they had to beat-em.

The Yankee wrecked Detroit's bid for contention when the Tigers were red hot and in second place. They have taken care of Boston for years — keeping the Red Sox from getting close by winning the big games. They have single-handedly crushed the White Sox this year in pathetic fashion.

Milwaukee, however, might not be so awestruck. The Braves have both hitting and pitching and might just up and win the Series. The odds, of course, will be on the Yankees, as they should be.

But we think the Braves will make it a whale of a series. And they have a chance to win The Braves were up against tougher opposition this year than were the Yankees and if that means anything, the Braves might find the pace in the Series not too fast.

The Yankee this year have played in spurts. If they're spurting the wrongway come Series time, they might end up on the short end of the scoreboard.
